Practice Management Software – APS Wins Accountancy Age Award

Advanced Professional Solutions (APS) today announced that its Practice Management suite, Advance PM, was awarded Practice Management Software of the Year at the 2008 Accountancy Age awards ceremony. APS beat off competition from both Iris and CCH to claim the industry's most revered award.

Brian Coventry, Managing Director for APS UK commented on the company's success, "To receive the Practice Management Software of the Year 2008 award is a fantastic achievement for the APS team and clients alike. It is recognition of our commitment to investing in new technology, our people and client relationships."

Tim Bennett, Business Development Director for APS UK also highlighted a second major endorsement for the company at the awards, "As an organisation, we are totally client focussed and we gained just as much satisfaction from one of our largest clients, Mazars, being awarded Large Firm of the Year."

"Our role in the professional services arena is to facilitate strong practice growth. To witness one of our clients receive an award for their performance makes us proud to be part of their organisation."

The success at the 2008 Accountancy Age awards is further evidence that APS is now firmly positioned as a global provider of enterprise practice management solutions.

About APS

Since inception in 1991, APS has been a relationship and service based organisation that moulds business process software around the individual business requirements of each of our clients. Our clients include a broad range of firms from the largest members of the Big 4 and their consulting cousins to mid-size and much smaller firms. While we may be well known for developing and supplying some of the very best software for Professional Service Organisations, particularly Accounting Firms, this is only one part of the APS success story. Much more than this, APS's sure and steady growth comes from the strong and carefully nurtured relationships we form with our clients and our prospective clients.
